

4. Candidate-facing instructions

- The logic test must be completed before the candidate proceeds to the application form and AI video interview.
- The AI video interview consists of three questions.
- Candidates receive a one-minute preparation buffer before recording each response.
- Responses must be recorded on the spot and cannot be repeated or re-recorded.
- The application is only complete after all required stages have been submitted.
- Completing all stages does not guarantee selection.
- Shortlisted candidates will be invited to a final interview.

8. AI Interview Questions & Rubric

Purpose: Explain the application stages, requirements, deadlines, and practical preparation tips. The session should explain the process without revealing the actual AI interview questions or logic-test answers.

Scoring guide for each criterion

Use this scale to determine how much of the available points to award:

Performance level	Guideline
Excellent	90–100% of available points: clear, relevant, well-structured, and easy to understand, with only minor language errors.
Good	75–89%: generally clear and relevant, with some errors or hesitation that do not obstruct understanding.
Adequate	60–74%: understandable but somewhat disorganized, repetitive, vague, or affected by noticeable language errors.
Limited	40–59%: difficult to follow in several places; incomplete reasoning or frequent errors interfere with meaning.
Insufficient	0–39%: does not answer the question, is largely incomprehensible, or provides too little information to assess.

Recommended interpretation

- 80–100: Strong communication readiness
- 70–79: Suitable, with minor communication-development needs
- 60–69: Borderline; review alongside logic-test and application results
- Below 60: Communication readiness may not yet meet the internship requirements

Candidates should not lose marks simply for having an Indonesian accent. Likewise, advanced vocabulary should not automatically receive a high score if the answer is vague or poorly structured. The main test is: Can a remote supervisor understand her, follow her reasoning, and know what action or support is needed?
